About This Booklet

This booklet outlines programs and services offered by the Kitselas Lands Management Office, which is part of the Kitselas Department of Lands and Resources.

The vision for the department is to promote sustainable management of the values important to Kitselas people to maintain the lands and resources for now and in the future.

Programs & Services for
KITSELAS MEMBERS

What is the Kitselas Land Use Plan?

Kitselas Chief and Council formally approved the Kitselas Land Use Plan in April 2012.

The Kitselas Land Use Plan is a policy document that provides the Kitselas Chief and Council with decision making tools for how Kitselas reserve lands are to be used.

Between August 2011 and March 2012, over one-third of the Kitselas membership provided input to the Land Use Plan. The reserves are now designated for uses identified by the community.

Completing the Kitselas Land Use Plan was Step 1 in establishing a land management regime for Kitselas under the Kitselas Reserve Land Management Act, enacted in 2005.

How is the plan used?

The plan should be used:

- By an individual considering a new use of Kitselas reserve land, to check if their idea is compatible with the community vision as expressed in the plan. As the idea forms into a clear concept, the policies and regulations should be used to shape the development itself.
- By the Lands Management Office, to guide reviews of land use applications.
- By Chief and Council, to inform and guide decisions about land use.

Find your copy of the Kitselas Land Use Plan and the Kitselas Land and Resource Stewardship Policy at:

LAND AND RESOURCE STEWARDSHIP POLICY

What is the Kitselas Land and Resource Stewardship Policy?

Kitselas developed and published a Land and Resource Stewardship Policy in 2008.

The policy sets out guidelines for how governments, proponents and others should 'do business' with Kitselas in the Kitselas traditional territory.

For example, the policy sets out procedures that Kitselas will use to review and assess any major projects proposed for Kitselas Traditional Territory.

Policy Principles

According to the Kitselas Land and Resource Stewardship Policy, the following principles must apply to all land, water and resource use within Kitselas Traditional Territory:

- Assurance that the proposed development or land, water and resource use will not pose a threat of irreparable environmental, cultural or resource damage.
- The development will not jeopardize, prejudice or otherwise compromise Kitselas First Nation Aboriginal rights, titles and interests.
- The project will provide more positive than negative social impacts for Kitselas people. (Provision through negotiations between Kitselas and the project proponent or regulator.)
- The widest possible opportunity for education and direct employment related training for Kitselas people in connection with any agreed upon development project.
- Employment opportunities for Kitselas people with respect to all phases of development.

LAND CODE

What is the Kitselas Land Code?

Kitselas manages its lands through the Kitselas Reserve Lands Management Act, which was passed by the Kitselas Band Council in January 2005.

This act is known as the Land Code.

The Land Code took the legal powers administering Kitselas lands from the Ministry of Indian & Northern Affairs and gave them directly to Kitselas First Nations. Kitselas Chief and Council now have the power to make decisions for how Kitselas lands are used.

The Land Code gives Kitselas the ability to make laws that are constitutionally protected. This means no one can change Kitselas laws other than Kitselas.

Anyone who wishes to make changes to Kitselas land must submit a Kitselas Reserve Land Interest Application to the Kitselas Department of Lands and Resources.

LAND TENURE

What is a Land Tenure?

Land tenures apply when an application has been made to the Kitselas Lands Office for an easement, a right of way, a permit, or a lease.

For example, Terrace Paving has a license of occupation (right of way) with Kitselas in IR.5 Zaimoetz. The company uses an access road within Kitselas lands so it pays an annual fee to the Kitselas Band to use that road.

Note: Kitselas does not sell the land. The land is just being used.

Land Interest Law

The Land Interest Law provides the Lands Director/Lands Officer with the legal authority to administer land tenures on Kitselas reserve lands.

The Land Interest Law created the Kitselas Lands Management Office. It also created the position of the Lands Director/Lands Officer who is responsible to administer the Land Interest Law and the Land Code.

Cost of Land Tenure

Kitselas land pricing, the fee charged for land tenure, is determined upon:

- Market value as set by the Lands Management Office after having conducted market research including a comparison of assessed values for taxation purposes and a comparison of comparable private sales within the surrounding area and appropriate market period.
- Exclusive land use and occupancy whether through permit or lease is set at 10% of market value annually.
- Non-exclusive use is set at 7% of market value annually.
- All costs associated with processing applications, including application fee, registration costs and legal survey are to be borne by the applicant.
- Any other factors the Kitselas Band Council decides are a determining factor for the final cost of Kitselas land use.

PROPERTY TAXATION LAW

The Property Taxation Law allows Kitselas to tax non-Kitselas members and organization that are using Kitselas reserve lands, for example, companies such as Telus and Pacific Natural Gas (PNG).

The BC Assessment Authority (BCAA) provides a tax assessment to the company.

After the Rates Law and Expenditure Law are approved by the First Nation Tax Commission, Kitselas sends tax notices to the companies.
