Solid Waste Management Planning Activity

- Throughout the workshop, table groups will work together as a planning team for a fictional First Nation that has begun the process of developing a Solid Waste Management Plan.
- Your table group will discuss ideas, analyze information from a Community Profile, and make planning decisions in the best interest of the community.
- Groups will also reflect on how similar planning processes and considerations may apply within their own First Nation.
- Following selected presentations, your group will complete the activity questions and be provided time for discussion.

Table Introductions

Please take 5 minutes to introduce yourselves to your table group:

1. Your name
2. Which First Nation you are representing
3. One thing that you hope to learn from the workshop
